Rome Police Use Tanks To Subdue Angry Mob

ROME, (AP)—Police and troops using tanks and armored cars fought for three hours Wednesday with demonstrators led by workmen protesting their dismissal from a public project. A government spokesman said one person died of injuries and 79 others were wounded.

Police announced earlier that three had been killed and leaders of the 20,000 to 30,000 demonstrators asserted at least eight were slain.

Scores of bullet marks pocked the Vittoriano, a seat of government, near where the dispute flared.

The crowd was in an ugly mood when it arrived at the palace for the third straight day, and its temper grew steadily uglier. The workmen, from the public works department, were to be discharged Saturday.

Several in the crowd were heard to shout as the police moved upon them: "This is no better than Fascism."

Before the police were reinforced, scores of demonstrators had pushed past the regular guards into the government building, where they broke furniture and shattered windows.

Many of the injured, including policemen, were reported in serious condition.

Move to Lift Meat Controls To Solve Shortage in U. S.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The United States meat industry moved formally Tuesday to ask Congress to lift meat controls, but while campaign-control groups are urging the move, the industry itself is urging the move.

The Q.P.A. meat industry, advisory committee started a petition by which it is asking Congress to lift the controls they believe are keeping meat off United States shelves.

The petition goes first to Agriculture Secretary Anderson. If he finally rejects it, it goes to the independent three-man board.

The army, unable to supply its overseas soldiers with United States meat, announced negotiations for a loan of 100,000 pounds of beef to be repaid a "preference" food allocation in both the European and Pacific theaters.

LONDON, (CP)—Food Minister John Bracken said Tuesday the British government would not fight for a loan of 100,000 pounds of beef to be repaid a "preference" food allocation in both the European and Pacific theaters.

Condemn Inaction In Illegal Strikes

WINNIPEG, (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in convention here Wednesday unanimously passed a resolution condemning the lack of law enforcement in connection with illegal strikes and violence in labor disputes.

The resolution charged that agreements "solely conducted by the employers and workers have been openly broken without any attempt to enforce them by the courts."

The resolution also urged the application of the law to all strikes, and the application of the law to all strikes, and the application of the law to all strikes.

Delegates requested the chamber's permanent committee to forward a copy of the resolution to Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The resolution also urged the application of the law to all strikes, and the application of the law to all strikes, and the application of the law to all strikes.

CANADIAN ARMY READIES ROAD FOR UNRESTRICTED TRAVEL:—The Alaska Highway as seen from the air (top centre) twists and winds through mountains, swamps and perpetually frozen muskeg, 2,500 miles from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska. Top left shows two motorists stocking up with gas at Whitehorse. Travelers pay from 45 cents to 86 cents per gal., and must carry enough to take them two or three hundred miles from one filling station to the next. Hazards are increased by landslides as at White River (top right), but curves and grades are gentle. The road, 24 to 36 feet wide, kept open by Canadian Army engineers maintenance crews established in 20 permanent camps, passes streams (lower left) where arctic grayling, trout and whitefish await the fisherman's cast. Of 700 bridges, the one over the Teslin River (centre) at Johnson's crossing, is the longest single structure. In nearby waters, Floyd Messer, Whitehorse prospector, pans for gold. One placer mine worked with bulldozers in the vicinity of the highway yields $2,800 every ten days. At mile 1016, a Dominion experimental station proves that wheat will flourish 1,000 miles north of the famous Peace River district.

"LOVE WILL FIND A WAY" runs an old saying, and though it took 15 months of waiting for air bookings, Iris Abbott of Purley, England, finally reached Toronto after a 30-hour flight from England. On hand was her fiancé, Lloyd Smith of Barrie, to fly her from Malton to Barrie. It was an anxious wait for Lloyd, shortly checking a passenger list (left) with Stewardess Audrey Waldschmidt when his bride-to-be was three hours late. Even customs regulations couldn't keep the happy couple apart after they had spotted each other. Ready to take the air again, Iris and Lloyd smile happily from Stinton plane which took them on last leg of the trip.

Improved Air Service Is Planned for Northwest

Grande Prairie and Peace River districts will eventually be entitled to aerial passenger and mail service twice daily. The two towns now being served by nine trips a week, Grant McConachie, assistant president of the Canadian Pacific Air Lines, told members of the Air Transport Board of Canada, making a review of the Air Transport Board under terms of the Aeronautical Act of Canada. The act called for a review of all licenses issued by the board of transport a year or so after the close of the war.

The three companies licensed by the old board were absorbed by C. P. Air Lines in 1941 but no new licenses were issued. The new licenses issued by the board of transport a year or so after the close of the war.

It is the function of the Air Transport Board to determine through representations by air carriers and the public whether or not services in the best interests of the public should be continued or since issuance of the licenses.

McConachie was the principal witness before the board. He made a statement on behalf of the C. P. Air Lines over the three licensed routes under consideration.

HE DESCRIBED changes made in the schedules by CPA to improve service to the public. The routes are: Grande Prairie to Yellowknife via Hay River, and Yellowknife to Whitehorse via Fort Smith. The routes are: Grande Prairie to Yellowknife via Hay River, and Yellowknife to Whitehorse via Fort Smith.

John Dower Honored at Banquet

To honor John Dower, Edmonton businessman, who has been prominent in Jewish philanthropic activities in Edmonton for many years, and who has served on various national committees, a complimentary dinner was held in the Macdonald hotel Tuesday evening.

H.A. FRIEDMAN, KC, chairman for the evening, presented Mr. Dower with an illuminated address on behalf of the various organizations with which Mr. Dower has been connected, and in recognition of his service to the community.

DR. E. WERSHOF, president of the Edmonton Zionist Council, in addressing the gathering, reviewed Mr. Dower's contribution to the organization.

Mr. Dower is western regional vice-president of the Zionist Organization of Canada.

Other speakers were W. Margolis, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada.

Contributions to Chest Hit $35,000 In Eight Days Collections in the first eight days of the Community Chest for $225,000, have reached approximately $35,000, according to an announcement from E. W. Stubbards, campaign manager, Wednesday. Mr. Stubbards pointed out that this shows a good advance over the same period last year but still falls far short from reaching this year's higher goal.

AT A RECENT meeting of Community Chest directors, it was decided that although the chest was determined in its decision to provide for the building of the Institute of the Blind, the YWCA and the Salvation Army, none but the most urgent repairs would be authorized until such time as housing needs have been adequately met.

Among the larger gifts received during the past few days are the following: Eaton (Western) Ltd. $1,500; T. Eaton employees, $1,500; W. H. Clark employees, $200; McDougall and Secord Ltd., $200; Canadian Bedding Co., $200; Canadian Bedding Co., employees, $200.

Fire Device Of City Man Is Acclaimed

Provincial fire commissioners are acclaiming a new fire extinguisher of W. McKeen of Edmonton, who has perfected a device for preventing fires in the home.

A tiny instrument not as wide as a 12-inch ruler, technically described as a mechanical switch, which operates a warning bell when there is an excessive rise in temperature.

According to McKeen, the device can be set up in any room of a house, and is placed in sleeping rooms to arouse the family in case of an outbreak of fire.

The device is now being marketed by the inventor.

Why Grow Old?

Let lemon juice help keep your elbows soft and white. Actress Joan Winfield takes advantage of this natural beauty aid.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
Our poor old elbows certainly show the wear and tear of summer. We have leaped on them in the sand and on the raft, and wind blown and unbroken them in order to look alluring. Sometimes as I write "Why Grow Old?" you may feel the same way when you read it. I think of the things we must do to be our most attractive self. We must cleanse and lubricate our face and neck, take our daily dose, brush our hair one hundred strokes, lie upon our backs, take short rest periods, get outdoors for an hour, sleep eight hours a night, to say nothing about the champagne and hair styling, manicures and pedicures. Yet the happy and amazing thing is that all of this can be worked into a daily routine which runs smoothly. If your organization is efficient these rituals become as natural and easy as brushing your teeth and taking your bath. They are an unthinking part of your everyday and add up to the difference between fatigue and vibrant health, especially mature aging and prolonged youthfulness.

My enthusiasm has led me off the track for today. I was talking about elbows. Remember? Let lemon juice be a splendid beauty aid.

a lemon in hot and push one elbow into each half. Then lean on your hands and daydream or plan your fall wardrobe for fifteen minutes. Your elbows will also profit by the daily use of a good brush. Rub your elbows rough with vigorously with soapy suds each day in your bath.

Dorothy Dix Says —

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a man of 30. My wife is 28. We have been married five years and have had three children. All during our married life I have stepped out on her, and she has never forgiven me during the past 18 months.

NOW I AM TIRED of painting the town red. I want to be with my family and have the respect of my children as they grow up. I want the love and respect of my wife. I am afraid I have lost that forever. She is an ideal wife and mother. She never nags. She never reproaches me. She goes about her duties quietly and lovingly. She makes our home life pleasant, but I know she would tolerate me for a moment if it were not for the children's sake. There is no other love nor respect in her eyes when she looks at me.

Is there any help for this situation?

A PENTITENT HUSBAND
ANSWER: I do not think so. There is no way of bringing life back into a corpse. You have killed your wife's love and respect for you and nothing you can do or say will ever bring back her faith in you or revive her love.

OFTEN the neglected wife does battle for her husband to come back because she is dependent upon him and knows no way of making a living for herself. Offense still keeps up the pretense of keeping up a home of which he is still the head because of the children. She wants them to respect their father, and she hides his infidelities as well as she can.

But the truant husband who thinks he can go back to a wife who still loves him betrays himself. What he has killed he cannot bring to life again. The dead are dead. Dear Dorothy Dix: In her last days my mother exacted a promise from me that I would marry a certain woman. I am not in love with this woman. I love another woman and would ask her to marry me if it were not for my promise to my mother.

What is your opinion of this?

BACHELOR OF 50
ANSWER: I think you are perfectly silly if you let your promise to your mother keep you from marrying the woman you love. No one should regard a death bed promise as binding because it is always exacted under a promise that no one has the right to inflict on another.

When a loved one is passing away from us forever, our hearts are torn with affection and compassion and we feel that we can deny them nothing, and we will promise anything that we will give them even a minute's happiness. We do not bargain with them, no matter how unreasonable the request. We do not stop to think that the dead should not rule the living, or that angels.

ANSWER: You will have to ask a dentist that question. But my observation is that you can use your eyes instead of your lips in settling that question. But what matter whether a girl's teeth are own by right of purchase or nature? A nice set of well-made dentures are certainly preferable to a mouthful of decayed teeth.

Believe It or Not! by RIPLEY

THE TEXAS NAVY — (THE FLAGSHIP, AUSTIN AND THE BRIG, WHARTON) WAS ORDERED SOLD AT AUCTION JANUARY 1943 BUT NO TAKERS!

as the day he was born, and how my small morning up to come out each neighbor, and upon in his sunset and five minutes later he would be running happily around the yard without a stitch. His mother would see him and come out to remonstrate, put his clothes back on and tell him people don't run outdoors without clothes.

But next day it would be the same. Next day it is cooler, he has no interest in that game and is glad to have his clothes on. By next year he will have forgotten the habit entirely.

Another mother, not so sensible, admitted she beat her child each time of day. She said she had learned nothing by his punishment and she wanted to know what I can suggest to do to him to make him keep his clothes on.

Such harsh methods are out of keeping with so trivial an offense. All children become interested in dressing and undressing. They find the manipulation of clothing, heretofore so mysterious, fully as exciting as playing with toys. A child can spend a morning dawdling over his dressing.

Obviously, we tell children that no one runs outdoors without clothes. It is bad taste and bad manners. And if they do, we dress them, showing them that if they do dress it must be indoors. Other than this there is no discipline involved. Children learn ways by telling and showing, and loss of their door-plate would be the sterner penalty.

Our leaflet No. 18 "Dress Preventions" will help the understood mother to make up her mind about these modern innovations. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Bridge
By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

One of the best bidding pairs in tournament bridge is Mrs. Benjamin M. Golden and Charles J. Solomon of Philadelphia, who have won many tournaments together. Although they do employ the four-club convention, a variation of the Blackwood slam convention, like most experts they prefer direct bidding.

They finished second in the Masters pair event in the Bridge Week tournament last May in California, in which Solomon played today's hand against E. N. Marcus of Boston.

Solomon decided against taking either the heart or the club finesse.

Elizabeth Woodward Says —

It took considerable courage to leave you . . . there are other girls who can. So date her best girl friends. Give them a fair right under her nose. Girls have a way of valuing very highly all the boys who slip through their fingers. They immediately want them back.

But there's no point in giving Marie any more rides in your Dad's car . . . until she stops taking you for a ride!

And she spends all her dates with you saving over a guy named Dick. You don't know him. But she knows him well. He's all she wants to talk about. She asks your advice about him . . . she complains to you about his behavior . . . she lets down her hair back after Dick.

BUT SHE PULLS HER hand away when you want to hold it in the movie. She turns her head and starts talking to the guy who makes the motions of kissing her goodnight. She never asks you what you think about anything. You spend your time doing the things that please her. And all of a sudden you realize that it's getting you nowhere. She's not even appreciative.

Having a girl like you in the same way as you have a guy named Dick. You don't know him. But she knows him well. He's all she wants to talk about. She asks your advice about him . . . she complains to you about his behavior . . . she lets down her hair back after Dick.

When you see that all you're bringing back is a little like-warm affection . . . it's time to turn over the record. There's no point in being around and being loved more of it . . . not when you crave her complete devotion. If she can't give it, she's not worth it.

Minute Make-Ups
If you show your face, beautify them. A tiny touch of rouge makes them match your cheeks. If your face is broad, use oval or irregular shaped earrings. For the long thin face, button earrings in brilliant colors will do a beautifying trick!
